Fight!

By Wilma Cook

Do you miss the good old days when no city council meeting was official without a fight?

You should have been around City Hall Wednesday about 4:30 p. m. No, the city council hadn't reverted to form but the planning commission was putting on a first-rate demonstration of civic leaders trying valiantly to hold their tempers in the face of considerable odds and succeeding not even fairly well. The planning commission was suffering from a difference of opinion, with Ernest Bixler furnishing the difference.

Ernie said he was opposed to granting permission to Clarence W. Wentworth to gerrymander his lot. It was nothing personal. He'd been a friend of Mr. Wentworth for 25 years, but he was opposed on principle to cutting lots up into little parcels and letting people build "tenements" higgly piggly all over Carmel. He said as an architect and designer it bothered his aesthetic sense.

The rest of the planning commission had heard this many times before from Mr. Bixler. They glared, opened their collective mouths and tried to shout him down, all except Mac (P. A. McCreery), who just looked tired, terribly, terribly weary. His previous processing as Mayor of Carmel stands him in good stead now as planning commission chairman. He sits and lets the tempest roar until everybody has had an opportunity to say the same thing three times in a good loud voice, and then he gives a few smart raps with his gavel and suggests that it is now time to take a vote.

What everybody said three times to Storm Center Ernest Bixler was:

A. If they adopted a policy of refusing all gerrymander requests regardless of the merit of the case, which seems to be what Mr. Bixler wants, there was no reason for their existence as a board of appeals.

B. Mr. Wentworth has a good, sound legal right to build the double garage with apartment above, that he intends to build on the same lot with his home, without the blessing of the planning commission, and probably would. The only reason for his request for permission to gerrymander was, if he is allowed to divide his one big lot into two separate lots, then he could have a kitchen in the apartment over the garage without violating the multiple dwelling ordinance, and rent the apartment to permanent, local tenants rather than to transients. So even if they denied Wentworth's petition, Ernie's aesthetic sense would have to go through the throes anyway, because the building would look the same whether or not it had a kitchen inside.

C. As for Ernie's aesthetic sense, anybody who has seen Mr. Wentworth's garden would know that he takes too much pride in his home and its setting to build an eyesore in his back yard, Mrs. Gladys Kiplinger added to clinch the argument.

This brought the round robin back to Ernie's saying over again that there was nothing personal involved. He'd known Mr. Wentworth for 25 years but he was op-

Grace Thompson Seton Thinks She's Old Enough Now To Ask To Visit The Cupola In The Executive Mansion

By Mary-Madeleine Riddle

Grace Thompson Seton has seen the world at large as few ever do. As the wife of Ernest Thompson Seton, whose combination career as artist, writer, explorer, naturalist, made his name known throughout the world at the turn of the century, Mrs. Seton had occasion to make acquaintance with many strange corners of every continent. She is also famous in her own right as explorer, traveler, writer, lecturer, and the long list of her activities and achievements in Who's Who is frighteningly long. Last week she was visiting her niece, Mrs. Nelson Miles Leoni, at the Palisades, Carmel Valley.

Mrs. Seton and Mrs. Leoni had spent the afternoon driving around Carmel in spite of the rain, and sitting before the fire after dinner on the evening I talked with her, reminiscence flickered on both their faces with the firelight. Mrs. Seton knew Carmel in the old days, for she used to visit her painting sister, Mrs. Frank Powers, mother of Mrs. Leoni, in the

How To Be A Gent In Any Condition Or Circumstances

It was simply a question of who was the most polite, the Carmel police officer or the tipsy offenders.

Early Saturday morning Officer Leslie Emery spotted two men arguing quietly but desperately in Joe's Taxi depot. When their slightly muddled conversation grew a little too colorful for the

Carmel Old Timer,
One Time Mayor Until He Resigned in a Huff,
Producer of the Carmel Shakespeare Festivals,

Member of the Carmel Planning Commission,
Dear Former Friend Bert:

Wednesday at the Planning Commission meeting you gave voice to the following heresy. You said,

"There is entirely too much emphasis placed on trees and not enough on view."

Fine! Next summer when you come around to The Pine Cone for editorial support for your not too good Shakespeare Festival, you can just go look at the view.

Yours on the prod,

Wilma Cook, firmly established in the democratic principle of trees for the many as opposed to view for the few.

All Sorts Of Fun Planned For Lions Super Fashion Show

Local girls will model the latest styles at a benefit fashion show to be staged Saturday evening at Mission Ranch under auspices of the Carmel Lions Club. Net proceeds will go into a fund to cover costs of the radiant heating unit now being installed at Carmel High School's new aquatic center.

Twenty Carmel apparel shops are participating in the event. After a serious exhibition of new styles, members of the Lions Club will give their own version of new fashions as well as other entertainment.

Other attractions in the full program include prizes, dancing and a buffet supper served at midnight. Admission per person for the whole evening of frolic is $2. Tickets may be secured from Lions in advance, or at the door.

Festivities will commence at 8 o'clock in the barn at Mission Ranch, and the date is Saturday evening. Lions arranging the show are Joe Hudder, chairman, Rod Coupe, Dave Davison, Ted Fehring, Reed Freeman, Al Fry, Joe Gaston, Waldo Hicks, Roy Hillyer, Fred Hollenbeck, Ronnie Garneau, Art Plaxton, Frank Putnam, and Dr. William Coughlin.

Whitaker Elected First President Of Carmel Craft Guild

At a meeting of craftsmen at the home of Mrs. Margaret Lang last Sunday afternoon the Carmel Crafts Guild became an organization instead of an idea, as officers for the first year were elected, a constitution adopted, membership fees paid in and development plans discussed.

The originally suggested name of the Carmel Guild of Craftsmen was changed to Carmel Crafts Guild for conciseness, and a seal bearing this name is in process of being made.

Godwin Names Gleason

Captain Henry M. Gleason (USN Ret.) has accepted the newly-created post of Commander of Carmel's Disaster Council, Mayor Fred Godwin announced yesterday. The Mayor's appointment was the first step in assembling the machinery for such a body since the adoption of the disaster ordinance three months ago.

Created for the purpose of formulating local plans and mutual aid agreements in the event of fire, flood, riot, storm, epidemic, earthquake, or enemy attack, the Disaster Council is empowered to regulate supplies and equipment, commandeer property, requisition personnel from any city department, and make other decisions vital to life and property of local residents. Principal officers are Chairman (the Mayor), Commander, and nine Chiefs-at-Large, representing Law and Order, Fire, Medical, Public Works, Utilities, Transportation, Communications, Personnel and Recruitment, and Red Cross divisions.

A native of Hartford, Connecticut, Captain Gleason has lived in Carmel for the past 16 years. After his graduation from the United States Military Academy in 1899 he served in the United States Navy for 25 years. A veteran of the Spanish-American War and World War I, during the recent war he was in charge of Naval construction in the San Francisco area until he was released to accept a position as manager of construction for the Moore Drydock Co., Oakland. His experience in commercial life includes service as operating manager of the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. On the retired list of the U. S. Naval Reserve with the raink of captain, he is a charter member of Carmel American Legion Post 512.

As candidate for city councilman last March he polled a substantial vote, but not enough for election.

Who Wants To Write To Robbie Kimball At Harbor Hospital?

Robbie Kimball, who used to go to Sunset School, misses Carmel. He's pretty cheerful for an eight-year-old boy who is just beginning to wiggle his fingers again, but he would certainly like to have some letters, especially from his former classmates. He is in Ward C-10 of Harbor General Hospital, Torrance, California, where he has been since November 19, when he was stricken with infantile paralysis, and it may be a long time before he can rejoin his friends.

Robbie's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kimball, who spent several years in Carmel and now live in Hermosa Beach, speak of their profound appreciation for the help given by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. They add the information that a Portland friend, upon hearing of Robbie's illness, has increased his donation to the Foundation by $500.

PADRES HOST TO GONZALES TEAMS TONIGHT

With Gonzales fighting to stay in contention for the top spot in the B division cage race, and the Padres in a position to grab a tie for second place, tonight's clash at the Carmel gym should bring out the best in both teams. The Spartans whipped the Carmel lads pretty convincingly in their first meeting at Gonzales. However, the local preps have come a long way since December 10 and have played very sound basketball in their last three encounters.

The valley boys have lost only two games this season, dropping a league tilt to Pacific Grove and losing a practice game to the Salinas varsity. Led by Wes Breschini and Tom Bolin, two deadeye forwards, the Spartans play a fast aggressive brand of basketball which appeals to the fans. They employ a tight man for man defense which pinches the opponents all over the court.

Carmel's starting five of Captain Gene Vandervort, Lee Laugenour, Dick Gargiulo, Steve Whitaker, and Jim Hare have shown signs of developing cohesive unit capable of solving either the zone or man for man defense. In last Saturday's clash with Fremont, the diminutive Padres put on a smooth floor performance which nearly upset the classy Sunnyvale squad. In Denicio Narvaez and Walt Frey, the locals have two of the best reserves in the league. Narvaez is an exceptionally good ball handler and rebound artist, while Frey excels as a set shot and strong dribbler.

The Red and Gray Padrecitos meet the Gonzales Babes in tonight's 7 o'clock preliminary game. Hard luck continues to shackle the little Padres. Last Friday night when they had a good chance to win their first league game, the Boulder Creek lights failed to show and denied Dawson's squirts an opportunity for their initial league win. The Padre Babes gave the strong Fremont cagers a real tussle last Saturday night but ran out of gas in the last quarter to drop the decision. Two wins and two losses adorn the Spartan lights record sheet for league play. They defeated Carmel and Boulder Creek and were dumped by Pacific Grove and King City. Tonight's 7 o'clock tilt should be quite a thriller with both teams going all out for victory.

CARMEL TROUNCES BOULDER CREEK, 53 TO 28

Shooting with an accuracy which has been indicated but not realized in previous games, the Carmel High School varsity turned in their top performance last Friday night to easily take the measure of the willing Boulder Creek Cougars. The Padres ruged into the 50 point bracket for the first time this season and co-operative teamwork was the vital factor in the bucket barrage.

Putting on an ironclad defense in the first quarter, the locals limited the Cougars to a brace of free throws and enjoyed an 11-2 lead at the end of the first heat. Field goals by Vandervort, Laugenour, and Gargiulo, plus Whitaker's free throw contributed to the Padre score. At halftime the Carmel boys were in front 22-11 with the reserve unit playing most of the second quarter. Laugenour, Gargiulo, and Vandervort all caught fire in the third quarter to boost the Padres over the 40 mark. The reserve unit took charge in the third quarter and meshed 8 points to make the final tally, 53 to 28. Boulder Creek presented a desperate shooting quintet which was prone to let fire from any point past the center line. They had a good rangy ball club but Carmel's close checking on defense kept them away from the basket.

The Boulder Creek lightweight team came down with the miseries Friday morning and were unable to make the trip to Carmel. Duke Dufur's Boys' Club lightweights substituted for the Cougars and provided a whale of a game for Dawson's midgets. The Padrecitos downed the Club quintet, 29 to 25, but it was a close tussle all the way. Stetson, DeAmaral, and Wermuth provided the scoring punch for the Boys' Club, while Burgess, Overin, and Updike were the big guns for the Padrecitos.

ALL-AMERICANS TO HELP IN BOYS' CLUB BUILDING FUND

Basketball as it should be played will be exhibited to Peninsula fans on Saturday, February 5, when Jim Campbell and his Santa Barbara All-Americans invade the Carmel gym to do battle with a steamed-up Ricketts Sports Shop aggregation. The Santa Barbara club is rated one of the top teams in Southern California and boasts a winning streak of 15 straight. Ky Miyamoto, Carmel's top athlete, is banding together a potent squad of local cagers to test the mettle of the visiting All-Americans. The All-Americans played here last year and put on a dazzling exhibition of basketball that left the fans gaping in amazement. All the tricks of the hoop trade are thoroughly mastered by this crew of college greats.

All proceeds from the game will be turned over to the Carmel Boys' Club building fund.

SUNNYVALE WINNER OVER BOTH HIGH SCHOOL FIVES

It was a nice trip to Sunnyvale last Saturday night when the Padres traveled to the Prune Belt to engage the Fremont High School in a pair of basketball games. Everybody had a good time going and returning, but the fruits of victory went to the home team in both tussles. Fremont has always been noted for its good cage teams and this year is no exception. They are tied for top spot in the Santa Clara Valley league at the present time and earlier in the year whipped the good Pacific Grove team on the Breakers court. The classy reputation of the Fremont cagers awed the Carmel varsity for the first four minutes and the host team was in front by 10 markers before the Padres hit the bulbs on their side of the scoreboard. After the buck fever wore off, the locals settled down and outplayed the Indians for the rest of the game. Closing the gap swiftly, Carmel was within three points of a tie at half time.

The Red and Gray team employed a fast-passing attack to pierce the Fremont zone defense for close-in set shots. Vandervort, Narvaez, and Frey were hitting with deadly accuracy to make every shot a direct hit or near miss. The second half saw both teams trading field goals on nearly every exchange, but a preponderance of free throws in Fremont's favor balanced the score toward the hosts. Carmel hit 10 charity tosses in 13 attempts, while Fremont cashed in on 17 in 22 attempts. Captain Gene Vandervort, with 18 points, was the leading scorer of the game but all the Padres, excepting Gargiulo, contributed the points for the Carmel cause.

It was a case of men against boys when the Padrecitos lined up to play the Fremont lightweights. The Santa Clara Valley league uses a different lightweight classification than the CCAL and as a consequence, the Fremont lightweights were bigger than the Carmel varsity. The scrappy Padrecitos put up a dandy scrap and actually led at halftime, but superior size wore them down in the second half. All the Carmel lads played way above their heads and were hustling all the way. The two Bobs, Updike and Burgess, put on a splendid display of fighting spirit against overwhelming odds.

Carmel fans will have an opportunity to see the fine Fremont High School teams in action when they come to Carmel in February.

Said Riza's Talk On Biblical Land Highly Successful

Said Riza, professor of Turkish at the Monterey Presidio Language School, entertained more than 60 members of the Carmel Missionary Society Tuesday afternoon at All Saints' parish house, when he told of his archeological expeditions through Trans-Jordania, Gerash, and the Land of Moab.

Starting at the almost perfect little Graeco-Roman city of Gerhas, probably the original Ramoth-Gildead of the Old Testament, Riza took his audience through its triumphal arches, down its roads bordered with Corinthian columns, past its mimic sea, where water fights and games were held, and through its two open air theaters and its temples. This was followed by living word pictures of ruined Crusaders' castles, Circasian villages, and the nomadic Bedouin tribes of the plains. From a discussion of the music of the wandering Bedouin troubadours accompanied by native stringed instruments, Riza's talk led to English-speaking authors and poets who have translated Arabian odes and epics, an exposition of the Moslem religion, and a comparative history of Christianity and Islam.

At a business meeting preceding Riza's lecture Mrs. R. Ellis Roberts, retiring chairman of the All Saints' Episcopal Church group of the society, formally presented Mrs. C. G. Strickland, new chairman. Devotions were given by Mrs. R. T. Stephenson, who spoke briefly on the anniversary of the conversion of St. Paul. Secretary and treasurer's reports were submitted by Mrs. T. D. Walters and by Miss Effa Spencer. Budget committee's suggestion that 25 per cent of the society's funds be allocated for work on the Monterey Peninsula, including help for migrant workers and colored churches, was reported by Miss Leonore Turner.

Gifts of $30 to the American Mission for lepers, $25 to the American Bible Society, and $25 to native missionary training in China and India were reported Tuesday, as well as financial help to the Berry School for needy youth in Georgia and the Prentice Institute for training of colored youth in Mississippi. Budget reports and recommendations were unanimously accepted.

Over 2,000 pounds of clothing and shoes have been sent to Europe and Asia for World Relief, and clothing bundles donated to the Save the Children Society, and to the Epiphany Mission in Tennessee, Mrs. Walter Lehmann reported. In connection with this work, she read a letter from a Bavarian Lutheran minister expressing gratitude for clothing given refugees from the Russian zone. A report by Mrs. Lesla E. Dixon showed that leper relief workers had sent 196 bandages, 190 garments, and $100 for a year's support of a leper child.

Tea for the large audience was prepared by Mrs. D. Macmillan Kerr and Mrs. F. Garner Boice, with Mrs. Bruce Bacon and Mrs. George Hart pouring. Nearly $60 was realized in a collection taken up for missionary work.

Brahms, Chopin Open Brereton Program At Sunset Tonight

Robert Brereton, gifted young pianist who will be presented tonight at Sunset Auditorium under the management of Alice Seckels and Franklin Dixon was enthusiastically received when he appeared, as guest pianist, last Sunday with the Oakland Symphony Orchestra.

Brereton has achieved fame as an accomplished artist the hard way. He has been blind since birth. He has developed into a pianist of the highest merit and to hear him play is to forget that he is sightless. His playing is warm, tingling with youth and life.

Brereton is offering the following program. Three numbers by Brahms, Ballade, D major, Op. 10, No. 2, Cappriccio, B minor, Op. 76, No. 2, and Rhapsody, B minor, Op. 79, No. 1. Three numbers by Chopin, Sonata, B flat minor, Op. 33, Nocturne, D flat major, Op. 27, No. 2, and Scherzo, B flat minor, Op. 31.

The second half of the program: The Maiden and The Nightingale by Granados, El Puerto by Albeniz, Sonata No. 2, Op. 28 by Prokefieff and Pour le Piano by Debussy.

Special student tickets will be offered at half the regular price at the Sunset box office tonight.

WOMEN'S DEMOCRATIC CLUB

The Carmel Women's Democratic Club will have as guest speaker on Friday, February 11, Mrs. Esther Murray of Los Angeles, vice-chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee. Additional details will be announced at a later date.

Ella M. Shives

Mrs. Ella M. Shives, Carmel resident for the past four years, died Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. P. Wettengel, First and San Carlos streets, following a long period of failing health.

Born in Nevada, Missouri, 74 years ago, Mrs. Shives was for 50 years a resident of Oklahoma, where her late husband, M. B. Shives, was for many years business manager of the Oklahoma State Hospital at Norman. Since 1945 she had made her home here with her daughter.

Mrs. Shives leaves, in addition to Mrs. Wettengel, another daughter, Mrs. Troy Rose, Bristow, Oklahoma; two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Zenor of Oklahoma City and Mrs. Eva Lee of Dallas, Texas; and three grandsons, Philip Wettengel, Carmel, and Thomas and Mack Rose of Bristow. Thomas Rose and young Wettengel are freshmen at the University of Oklahoma at Norman.

Mrs. Wettengel left Carmel Tuesday morning to participate in services to be held in Norman today, with burial in the family plot there. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

"WE HAD TO GIVE IN"

Our taxi rates have remained unchanged for many years.

Through three waves of price increases—for gasoline, tires, repairs, and everything—we have tried to continue these rates and still operate soundly.

Now we realize it can no longer be done.

To distribute the higher cost most evenly among all the friends we carry here and there, we plan, on FEBRUARY FIRST next, to ADD FIVE CENTS for each unit of Carmel service—

"A NICKEL MORE ON A RIDE."

With this modest increase we believe we can continue to deliver the class of service which has made our taxi fleet a local institution. We shall do our best.

We thank Carmel for its unfailing co-operation.

Whitaker Elected First President Of Carmel Craft Guild

ing up meeting, resigned from this post due to pressure of other work, and Francis Whitaker was elected president. Other officers are Mrs. Marion Brueck, vice-president; Enola Dickey, recording secretary; Mrs. Barbara Blair Wasserman, corresponding secretary; E. M. Beecher, treasurer.

The aim of the organization is stated in article two of the constitution: "It shall be the object of the Carmel Crafts Guild to further the interests of craftsmen of the Monterey Peninsula area; to encourage, develop, and maintain a high standard of craftsmanship; and to stimulate an appreciation of fine workmanship both among its members and the general public."

Membership in the Guild shall be extended to: a) Active craftsmen, having power to vote, paying dues of $10 annually; b) Associates: 1. Sustaining members paying $5 annually; 2. Life members, paying $100 or more; 3. Junior members up to 21 years of age, paying $2.50; 4. Honorary members.

The executive board will hold monthly meetings, with a quarterly general meeting.

The decision to make membership open to anyone who is capable of doing good work, whether he makes his living in a craft, works at it only part-time, or just as a hobby, instead of limiting membership to those who can qualify as master craftsmen is considered by Mr. Whitaker to be a most important one. He explained that members' interpretation of the aim is to soft pedal commercialism and to help develop the crafts people who are not yet established.

A membership and exhibits committee has been set up; Mr. Marion Brueck heads this, with Howell Armor, Mrs. Margaret Lang, Claude Wolf and Joe Frame assisting. Anyone wishing to become a member should contact Mrs. Brueck at the Carmel Art Shop.

Plans are being made to have a Crafts Exhibit at the Monterey County Fair. President Whitaker has offered a plot of land he owns adjoining the Forge in the Forest on Junipero at Fifth, to be used for a Crafts gallery, and eventually the Guild expects to put up a building there.

Though the name is the Carmel Crafts Guild, it is stressed by members that this is for name effectiveness, and it is intended as an organization for all craftsmen throughout the Monterey Peninsula.

posed on principle . . . "for the good of Carmel . . . commission should adopt a policy of refusing . . ." and the members shouting back that as board of appeals it was their job, . . . "judge each case on its merits . . . reason for our existence. . . ."

Then Mac said, "Shall we take a vote?"

There were six yesses and one no, Ernie's.

Of course, both sides were right. Ernest in theory and the rest of the members in practice. And even though it was annoying to the board and perhaps embarrassing to Mr. Wentworth, Ernest did the community a service in raising the disturbance. Mr. Wentworth got his permission, which he probably deserved, but Ernest drove home his point, an important one. He made it clear that he is going to continue to oppose with vim and vigorous words every request for gerrymander, so that people approaching the board for such permission will have to have a very strong case before the other board members will be willing to go through what Ernest puts them through when they grant it.

CARMEL MUSIC SOCIETY

Theft of a strong box from offices of the Carmel Music Society sometime during the weekend was the work of amateur or juvenile burglars, Carmel police said this week. After gaining entry to the Ocean Avenue building, which houses both the society and Ernest F. Morehouse's insurance offices, by removing a pane of glass from the rear door, thieves removed the steel box from an unlocked cabinet, broke it open, and discarded the box in bushes at Ocean and Casanova when they discovered it contained only tickets and an insurance policy.

Although the box has contained as much as $4,000 at one time in the past, present policy is to bank receipts daily, B. Franklin Dixon, president of the society, said in reporting the theft Monday morning. The battered container was found later Monday by Lester Mylar of the street department. No other loss from either of the adjoining offices was reported.

The Federal plan of representation has prevailed in the California Legislature since 1928.

Sophie Marshall, who has spent many weeks at a Palo Alto hospital, will soon be enjoying the luxury of fresh air through the window of an ambulance en route to the Marshall home in Carmel.

By way of a letter to The Pine Cone the "returnee" sends "very warm greetings to the most generous friends who have cheered and brightened the numerous days of captivity by sending more than 325 letters, notes and cards to the hospital."

Mrs. Marshall will not, until further notice, be able to see any of her friends, nor respond to any telephone calls, but "you will hear from me as soon as I have been able to readjust myself to new conditions, so please do come then, and please do not send any reminders of your overflowing kindness and generosity which I so regret I have had to let go unacknowledged.

"The return to one's home town is an exciting event.

"May you all keep warm and be happy until we meet soon. Ever cordially your fortunate and grateful friend, Sophie H. Marshall."

Angelo Lucido

Angelo Lucido, for the past 36 years a resident of the Peninsula, where he culminated his career as owner of the San Carlos Cannery in Monterey, died suddenly at a San Francisco Hotel Sunday. He was born 52 years ago in Trepani, Italy.

He leaves his wife, Annette; of Randall Way and Fourth, Carmel; three sons, Bartolo, San Francisco, and Frank and Angelo, Jr., of Carmel; three daughters, Jo Ann Patane, San Jose, La Vern Lucido Appleton, Oxnard, and Sandra Ann Lucido, Carmel; and three brothers, Frank, Pacific Grove, Salvatore, Trepani, Italy, and Nino, Monterey.

Services were held Wednesday at the T. A. Dorney Funeral Home under auspices of the Monterey Elks. The Reverend D. Howard Dow of the Pacific Grove Episcopal Church officiated.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN

The next meeting of the Recent Graduate Group of the AAUW will be held on February 3 in the home of Mrs. Donald Dubrasich, 587-D Hartnell avenue, Monterey.

The first recorded planting of Muscat grapes was in 1873 near Fresno, when 25 acres were set out.

Wait, Don't Yell, The Signs Are Just A Temporary Plague

Chief of Police Roy Fraties urges Carmelites not to have a fit over the two atrocious yellow and green parking signs stuck up at the curb in front of The Pine Cone office on Dolores Street and across the street at the other truck loading zone. They are not fixtures. They are there for a month's trial so the police department can find out if the wording makes sense before it goes to the expense of having permanent metal signs made.

"There are half a dozen truck loading zones in this town, why do you have to try out your bilious sign under our noses?" The Pine Cone Editor wanted to know.

"We like to hear you yell," said Mr. Fraties.

The Street Department doesn't share the Police Department's preference in vocalization. Remember the time The Pine Cone hollered loud and long to have the trash receptacles that had been stored in the city yards put back on the streets? Suddenly, one of the trash containers appeared across the street from The Pine Cone office and the whole staff was highly gratified. The Pine Cone Gets Results! It was weeks before anybody noticed that this was the only one on any street in Carmel or that it represented all that remained of the trash cans that had been "stored" in the city yard.

"What's the big idea, Bill, sticking that can across the street from us so that we'd be sure to see it and think you'd put them all over town?" The Pine Cone Editor demanded wrathfully of Street Superintendent William Askew.

"Thought it would keep you quiet for a while," said Mr. Askew.

SCOUT CIRCUS

The public is invited as guests of the Peninsula district to attend the Boy Scout Circus slated for February 8.

Fifteen units, representing Monterey, Carmel, Pacific Grove, Seaside and Fort Ord will take part in the festivities.

Dr. Billie's Garden

By L. A. W.

One of the departures in the garden this year will be less emphasis on root vegetables and beans and greater emphasis on a variety of greens. Some of these will be used raw in salads and others will be cooked for a green vegetable. The list includes escarole (endive) mustard, turnips, for tops, and dandelions. There is hazard in this last but rest assured no chance will be taken on letting even one plant come to blossom.

The inspiration for this departure arose from reading Angelo Pellagrini's book, The Unprejudiced Palate. The book overwhelms you with descriptions of and comments upon simple but flavorful gustatory delights. Try the treatment suggested for broiled fish with greens, and have some Italian bread pinch hit for our hackneyed white potatoes. Of course you must not be allergic or averse to garlic as a condiment, here or elsewhere in his dishes.

This is not just another cook book at all. It is a whole philosophy of life built around raising and eating food as one part of well-rounded living. The author was a peasant lad in Italy who, from his first day in the United States, has been amazed at the abundance of food here and at the myriad ways in which we waste it. He now teaches English literature in the University of Washington. But he raises his own vegetables and makes his own wine. His book tells you how he does both of these stunts. The man, the book, the food are full of zest and flavor.

Here, here, this is not a book review column and I had better get on with garden talk. Among the novelties to be tried out this year will also be cardoon. It seems this is a close relative of our artichoke but you eat the parent stalk and stems instead of the budding children. The books all claim it is very easy to grow and does well in a cool climate. Sounds like a natural.

Just for fun a trial will be made of witloof chicory (French endive). That seems a bit more tricky but the gourmet in me drives me on to give it a fling. It seems that you first grow good-sized plants, then cut off the tops an inch above ground and bury the whole thing six to eight inches deep in a mound of earth. The plant goes on growing in the dark, reaching up through the dirt for light. When the tips show through the dirt, you dig in and cut the plant off at the base. Product is a yellowish green, tender, succulent morsel for the salad bowl. Both the process and the product sound exciting, or do they?

Now don't get the idea there will be no beans in the garden this year. Oh, no, my dear, not so. There will be beans, and then some, to put in the deep freeze, exactly as last year. But last year I was a bit intemperate with bean vines and this year shall be a bit abstemious. What is a vegetable garden without beans?

Oh, yes. There'll be a longer row of garlic this year, too.

Most of the gold mines of California's lode (as distinguished from dredging) have not been reopened since the end of the war.

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

Marcia De Voe's Kindergarten

The puppies climbed out of their box and went into the front room. They woke my mommy up and she had to feed them in the front room. The boy puppy is named Jesus and he almost lapped up the whole dish of milk.

—Stanley Hirsch.

The window was open at night and my kitten crept in and licked my face. I had to give her some milk in the middle of the night before she would stop!

—Brooke Bratney.

My kitty jumped up on my bed last night. She ate all her food. My kitty is gray. Her name is Pixy because she is a Pixy.

—Janice Way.

Our puppy likes to eat all the milk. The mother dog won't eat until the puppy is finished. Then he goes to sleep in my lap.

—Barbara Ann Jordan.

I have so many dollies I don't know what to name them. When my dog growls I know he doesn't want me to come near him.

—Pat Veit.

We have a Buick. We had to call the gasoline man because the gas was all gone.

—Courtney Carswell.

My grandpa's going to move to another house. Our car broke down and we had to get a tow truck, I think.—Stephen Gray.

My cocker climbed up on my bed and when I woke up there he was on the covers.

—Midgie Mettler.

Anna Kohner's Third Grade

I have a new house. It is being painted on the third coat. We will be in our new house in ten days. One of the workmen cut his hand. His name is Dick Wilson. He is a good carpenter, I think. He has worked all the time. My mother can't decide what color to paint.

—Michael Raggett.

We are making a room out of our garage. It is almost finished, and I think it will be finished this week.—Gerry Byrne.

One of the girls in our class is moving to Del Monte Heights. Her name is Nadean Hiner. We will all miss her.—Johnny Gray.

I am going to make a tent, and it is going to have a smoke hole in it. Then I am going to play in it, and I am going to make myself a drum.—Virginia Elliott.

The creek flows near,
But I don't fear
Because I am a sailor boy.

—Billy Dorman.

Our daisy bushes froze when it started getting cold, and the sap oozed out of the bushes and looked exactly like snow. This morning I went out and touched it, and it froze my hands.—Laurel Martin.

We put a can of water outdoors and in the morning the water was frozen.—Fred Funke.

I have a new house that we are building. We just finished the last coat of paint, and we moved in a long time ago. We have two cats. One is named Cream Puff, the other is Snooks. I had to bring two loads of wood in because it is so cold. It was almost below zero this morning.—Robert Boylin.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Who's A Foreigner?

While I'm waiting for a haircut the other day, Slim Hartman lets slip with a crack about those "foreigners" who live by the depot.

"Now wait a minute, Slim," snaps Doc Sherman. "Don't forget we're all 'foreigners' more or less. Some of our families have simply been here longer than others. But even if they came over on the Mayflower, they were foreigners to the Indians."

Slim gets a little red and you could see that Doc had him. "And the reason they came here," he goes on, "was to find freedom to do and think as they wanted to so long as they didn't tramp on the rights of the other fellow."

From where I sit, America became the great land it is today through our being tolerant of different people and different tastes—whether it's a taste for square dancing or waltzing, radio or movies, goat's milk or a temperate glass of sparkling beer.

HI CHATTER

By Nancy Page

Elections are over for another semester, and with them all the excitement and tension of campaigning by sixteen candidates for office. Balloting last Friday brought to a close a week of poster making and high pressure campaign work for the benefit of prospective voters. Results of the election were: Aram Tootelian, student body president; Frank Richey, vice-president; Edelen Cory, secretary; Joan Daniels, commissioner of girls' athletics; Nancy Page, commissioner of publicity; and Patsy Canoles, commissioner of social and community affairs. A runoff for boys' athletic commissioner on Monday came out with Paul Artellan as winner. Commissioner of finance, Patricia Timbers, and yell leaders Dici Douglas, Joan Sanders, Georgann Bell, and Joyce Bannerman will continue to serve for the remainder of the year.

Outgoing student body officers include Elton Clark, president; Dick Taplin, vice-president; Benita Updike, secretary; Dan Holmes, commissioner of boys' athletics; Louise Harber, commissioner of girls' athletics; Janet Richey, commissioner of publicity; and Margot Campbell, commissioner of social and community affairs.

A dance carrying out the South of the Border theme is to be staged tonight by the Spanish Club after the league game with Gonzales. Decorations will be done in red, white, and green, the colors of the Mexican flag, and the big attraction of the evening will be the breaking of a colorful pinata filled with surprises. Two very authentic native "Mexicans" plan to attend the gathering, complete with their wooden frames, paper stuffing, and serapes. As the guests sit at little tables sipping punch made especially for the occasion by the Spanish Club's master punch-makers, Delfo Giglio will serenade with violin music. Committees for the affair are: decorations, Eleanor Taggart, chairman, Kathleen Whittaker, Barbara Horne, Joan Daniels, Ann Marie Tanous, Shatzi Herron, Sali Dalton, and Marjorie Glennon; refreshments, Nancy McGill, chairman, Cynthia Zarafonitis, Nancy Dassonville, Frank Richey, Pat Merivale, and Joe Beard; tickets, Alys Knight, chairman, Carol Timbers, Billie Barnett, and Ann Spurr; publicity, Sali Dalton, chairman, Kathleen Whittaker, Ann Marie Tanous, Eleanor Taggart, Mary Eleanor Horne, and Ardith Morrisseau; entertainment, Patsy Canoles, chairman, Shirley Elliot, Carol Bedau, Nancy Page, and Bill Albee; and cleanup, Joe Beard and Niels Reimers.

After a week of intensive tryouts, the cast for this year's senior play has been announced. Those receiving the coveted parts in Jane Eyre are: Benita Updike (Leah), Laurel Hildebrand (Mrs. Fairfax), Jackie Briggs (Grace Poole), Kathie von Meier (Jane Eyre), Margot Campbell (the woman), Bill Marquardt (Mr. Rochester), Juliannne Poulichet (Adele), Ruth van Neil (Lady Ingram), Jennefer Lloyd (Blanche), Ardith Morrisseau (Mary), Aram Tootelian (Frederick), Dick Taplin (Mr. Mason), and Gary Shaw (Mr. Wood).

Rehearsals will be held at Sunset Auditorium three times a week for the next six weeks beginning Monday night. The presentation of the play will be on Friday night, March 11. Technical staff for the production includes: Blake Lyle, stage manager; Cynthia Carr, assistant; Bob Burgess, electrician; Ed Siefert and Marjorie Glennon, properties; Beverly Wightman and Nancy McGill, costumes; Hilary Carnson and Gunnar Reimers, advertising; Patricia Timbers and Patsy Canoles, house managers; Nancy Page, prompter; Connie Melchior, Louise Harber, Paul Artellan, and Floyd Adams, stage crew; and Dici Douglas, make up.

Since this week has been spent in cramming for and taking final exams, no extra curricular activities have been scheduled other than the regular noon volleyball games, after school sports, and a special folk dancing period for the whole school during the noon hour on Monday. The grade period for the first semester's work ends today, and grades will be issued on Wednesday. Class and club officers for the last half of the year are to be elected at the beginning of the week, with installation of new student body officers at a special assembly on Monday. After that, activities will pick up again and keep everyone twice as busy as before. But after going through a week of finals, most of us are of the opinion that we could live through just about anything.

MEN OF THE WAYFARER

Ted Fehring was elected president of the Men of the Wayfarer at the business session of the organization following dinner on Thursday, January 20. He succeeds Dr. Francis H. Sparks, who has served as president since the first meeting of the club in February of last year. During the first year, monthly dinner meetings have been held with outstanding speakers addressing large groups of men who are members or friends of the church.

Following last week's election, the men listened to a symposium on the theme, What Can We Expect in 1949? in which Alton H. Walker, Paul McKinstry, Robert P. Spencer, Arthur C. Hull and Charles M. Twining participated.

The next meeting will be on Thursday, February 17, when Leta Cromwell, European observer, will speak.

Let the chill winds blow! You'll be warm in a soft cashmere cardigan in wool boucle from the HARRIET DUNCAN SHOP. These sweaters, which are naturals for this kind of weather, go beautifully with skirts and blouses or serve as an extra wrap. You'll find them, with their tailored cardigan necks and front buttons, in the luscious shades of pimiento, verde green, and gray. The new look in sweaters is also found in another extra special buy at the HARRIET DUNCAN SHOP. A wool button-down-the-front blouse sweater features a demure little collar and turned back cuffs on short sleeves. The price is just right, and the sweater will set off your pet suit perfectly. Chartreuse, apricot, white and mauve are the colors in those attractive sweaters at HARRIET DUNCAN'S on Lincoln and Fifth streets.

Something really unique and beautiful in the way of gifts is to be had in the new plastics at TWIGS OF CARMEL. You'll find everything imaginable: salt and pepper shakers, paper weights, pendants, earrings, clasps, barretts, tie racks, door knobs, luggage tags, key chains, night lights, everything! Many of the gleaming plastics are tastefully decorated with fascinating flowers that are very realistic looking. Mary and Louise of TWIGS OF CARMEL believe they are the first to have these unusual plastics, which are well worth a look-see next time you're near the Golden Bough Court on Ocean between Lincoln and Monte Verde.

If you're up to your ears in laundry or drizzly weather has you stymied on the clothesline problem, the LITTLE GEM LAUNDRAMATIC on Junipero and Fourth streets will solve your problem. Your cares are over as the dirt whisks away from clothes and linens, and your laundry comes out spanking clean. Specially featured at the LITTLE GEM is the cleaning and drying of chenille bedspreads, quickly and cheaply.

MONTEREY HEALTH FOOD CENTER carries a complete line of foods for salt-free diets, including whole wheat crackers, nut butters, powdered soup and seasoning broths, and saltless seasoning that tastes like salt. Instruction in reducing diets is also given by Victoria of the HEALTH CENTER, located just around the corner from the First National Bank in Monterey.

Easter's not so far away as it seems, and it's time to begin thinking about spring suits, as well as Easter bunnies and colored eggs. The CARMEL DRESS SHOP is the place to begin, for its racks are being filled with suits in every variety of fabric and color. Mostly all-wools, they come in everything from gabardine to tweed. You'll love the pastels, including pink, powder blue, and aqua, and the navies and blacks. Or, if you like, there's a striking pink or green tweed. And don't let size worry you a bit. These beautifully tailored suits come in a range of sizes nine to eighteen. The smart woman will shop early for these tops in spring suits at the CARMEL DRESS SHOP on Ocean Avenue near Dolores.

Freezing temperatures may have nipped your plants to a state of dismalness, but your spirits need not be dampened in the least, not when you can have color in every room of the house with spring blooms from FLOR DE MONTEREY. All sorts of potted plants are to be found, good reminders of the spring weather not too far distant. There are bright yellow daffodils, lavender, pink, and white hyacinth and cyclamen, to mention but a few. So don't waste any time, but get several of these potted plants right away from FLOR DE MONTEREY on Franklin street in Monterey. You know how much the right flowers can do for a room.

Hurry, hurry!! The big fall clearance sale at the Cinderella Shop is nearly over, and what bargains you'll find at the shop! There are still some outstanding buys to be had in this breath-taking offer of those still very desirable warm dresses. Bright and light shades of greens, blues, reds, and the darker browns and blacks are found in wool and also in silks. And on top of all this there are a few coats and suits left, too. There's no question about the money you'll save at this wonderful sale. Why, one beautiful dress we saw was being practically given away at less than one-third of the original price, and way below cost! But stop in and see for yourself these unbelievable savings you can make at the CINDERELLA SHOP on Ocean Avenue.

Dr. David Bradley To Speak Here On Atomic Program

Dr. David Bradley, Bikini radiologist and author of the book, No Place to Hide, will speak Saturday, 8 p. m. in the Sunset Auditorium. His is the second of five lectures on atomic energy given under the auspices of the Adult Education program of the Carmel public schools. The title of his talk will be the same as the title of his book. It will be about radioactivity.

Dr. Bradley was originally scheduled to speak here on February 11; but he was invited to appear on the Town Meeting of the Air in New York on that date, and his lecture here was switched to Saturday night. While in the East he will act as technical advisor in production of a documentary film based upon his book.

Dr. Bradley spoke on the Monterey Peninsula about a year ago during Atomic Energy Information Week, his first public address upon the subject that has since brought him world-wide recognition. Now he is in constant demand as a speaker, and when the Book-of-the-Month Club sent out his book to its subscribers, it stated that it was the most important book it ever had distributed.

Admission to all these atomic lectures is free to the public.

The Color Photography Appreciation Class announces a color portraiture contest tonight, January 28, and on Friday, February 14, in room 11, Sunset School. There will be models with costumes and special lighting to simulate famous paintings. Everyone interested is urged to bring cameras and participate.

Tonight, Friday, Mrs. Abel Warshawsky, wearing her colorful Breton costume, will pose under the direction of her artist husband.

Leota Tucker, Adult Education instructor in photography, announces that on Monday night, January 31, a color movie group will present a fine travel film in the Sunset School Library (not the auditorium.)

Interesting films and color slides are shown every Monday and Friday evenings, and everyone is welcome to attend. Scheduled on the February programs are Vera Cruz, Yucatan, Stilwell Road, Arizona and Old Mexico.

COUNTY OF MONTEREY)

Elmer L. Machado, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: That as Public Administrator of the County of Monterey, State of California, the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all the estates coming into his hands during the six months period from July 1, 1948, and that said return shows the value of each estate, the moneys which have come into his hands from every such estate, what has been done with said moneys, and the amount of his fees, the expenses incurred in each estate, and the balance of money in each estate remaining in his hands; that he is not interested in any expenditures made on account of any of the above-named estates, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with anyone who is so interested.

ELMER L. MACHADO

Do You Remember ...?

PARIS, 1910

By A. G. Warshawsky

Every street, every square, almost every block of buildings, had a life of its own, a distinct individuality. Gradually I also became aware that despite the dull skies and drab atmosphere of a drizzly November day there was everywhere color of a subdued but luminous quality, such as I had never before noted in any city under existing atmospheric conditions. Paris, "under her cloak of chilliness and rain," as the old poet sang, was smiling her welcome to me, discreetly, and with a frowning shyness, but full of secret invitation, undefined promises of what might be in store for one who learned to love and to woo her in all her moods. To have fallen in love with her under a blue sky, a summer breeze and dancing sunlight, would have been a facile victory, for no city in the world can vie with Paris in a holiday mood. But to feel her subtle, half concealed allurements in this November mood was surest proof that the reputed power of enchantment of the Siren City was no idle tale.

True, this Paris, through which I was passing from the Montparnasse region down towards the river, was a little disconcerting, often disappointing. Much of it seemed neglected, bedraggled, even mean and squalid in parts. Narrow, shabby little streets adjoining spacious boulevards, were not at all what one might expect in the heart of a great modern city. But despite my American standards of what I might deem essential to a well planned city, there was no denying there was charm about this paradoxical Left Bank, something quaint and ingratiating. But the thrill I expected — the Paris Thrill—was lacking.

It came at last as our lumbering vehicle emerged from the network of narrow streets on to the quays. There before me was the rain washed Seine, gurgling under its many bridges, so airy and toy-like compared with the monumental structures which span our great rivers at home, diminutive steamers plying to and fro, slowly drifting barges and swinging cranes unloading cargo under the very shadow of the great Louvre palace, as if the waterways were yet, as in bygone times, the main road of traffic for the capital of France.

Every detail of the scene was familiar to me from the pictures and photographs I had seen—Notre Dame, set midstream on its island, widely arched "Pont Neuf" astride the prow of the green river garden of the "vert-Galant," the sombre pile of the Conciergerie with its menacing twin towers, evoking tragic memories, and the famous quays, lined with book cases where studious loafers frittered away precious time, instead of hustling along and "getting things done," as good citizens should. All this I knew by heart and recognized. This was the Paris I knew, that all the world knew. And yet . . . Perhaps it was the very familiarity of the scene which made it so entrancing, so surprising, as if a dream picture had suddenly materialized. Almost I had feared that this much depicted aspect of Paris would appear too hackneyed, too banal, when seen in real life. But now I realized—and with what a thrill!—that so far from being an exhausted subject, it was still awaiting other painters.

Having crossed the bridge, we passed under the gloomy arches of the Louvre to the Place du Carrousel, where Gambetta in flamboyant marble—a symbol of democratic eloquence and the rhetoric of the Third Republic—is forever thundering mutely at the spectre of the now vanished Tuileries palace, the home of tyrants, royal republican and imperial. Behind him, modestly screened by trees, a very gentlemanly George Washington stands on his pedestal, executing a military salute with West Point correctness. Here we descended for my first view of the Louvre galleries.

Of my first conflicting emotions on seeing, so to speak in the flesh, so many of the great landmarks in painting, I recall most distinctly my vague disappointment on coming face to face with the famous "Mona Lisa!" I had always visualized this picture as something immense and breath taking, but Leonardo's canvas looked small and almost insignificant in contrast with the huge, magnificent paintings in that immense gallery. But I too, soon fell under the spell of the "Gioconda," fascinated less by the supposed magnetic quality of her mysterious smile, as by the rare craftsmanship, the rhythm, and the matchless composition which make this picture one of the supreme works of art.

Those were breathless hours, which passed all too quickly, for closing time in November comes early. Owing to fear of fire, the Louvre galleries have never been lit artificially. Yet it seems a great pity that some means of lighting cannot be resorted to, for many of the galleries remain in semi-obscurity even on the brightest days.

On leaving the Louvre, I took my first long walk in Paris, following the Seine along the quays. Everywhere there were subjects to be painted, and my fingers itched for the sketch book. We proceeded as far as the Boulevard St. Michel, the famous "Boul' Miche," main thoroughfare of the Latin Quarter, and stopped at the Cafe d'Harcourt, near the Pantheon, for a belated lunch. This was my first glimpse of the inside of a French cafe, and this particular establishment was one of the landmarks of the Bohemian Quarter. Girls with large floppy hats, their faces painted a dead white, lips stained with scarlet, and pencilled eyes, appeared to have stepped out from those posters of Paris life which had hitherto seemed too fantastic for truth.

The Sorbonne students and the "rapins" (i.e., the struggling painters) wore large berets and wide brimmed felt hats, ample capes by way of cloaks, and often peg-topped corduroy trousers. All wore beards of some sort or another, the youngest often being whiskered and mustached like veritable buccaneers. Everyone seemed to be in a state of elation, despite the fact that coffee and beer were the prevailing drinks served to this curious crowd. I still recall the thrill with which I noticed an elderly gentleman imbibing a long, pale drink, of a greenish hue; wondering whether, like the hero-victim of Marie Corelli's "Wormwood," he went about accompanied by the phantom of a green eyed tiger; until I was assured it was milk, and not the baleful absinthe, he was drinking. It was also curious to remark that in this topsy-turvy French world a glass of port, instead of following a meal in the traditional Anglo-Saxon manner, was often taken as an appetizer before dinner, one of the long variety of "apertifs." This, however, was more or less a "bourgeois" luxury, the attribute of business men and employees. In Latin countries, then as now, alcoholic stimulants play no great part with the rank and file of youth, which is quite able to kick over the traces without being primed up by artificial means. In fact, in France to be called an "ivrogne," or drunkard, is not regarded as a joke—far from it!

Having heard from Kroll that there was an evening sketch class at Julian's, which required no formalities except the payment of a small fee, I decided to have a look at this famous academy, located not far from where we dwelt.

The immense atelier in the Rue du Dragon, where the evening class was held, was crowded with students of all nationalities, some staid and serious like those frequently observed at the night classes I had attended at the National Academy in New York. The walls were covered with studies of the nude and portraits, all works of students which had been awarded prizes. Two of these were by the Leyendecker brothers, whose magazine covers had become so popular in the States.

THE GREEN WINDOW

Through a frolic of wind
We saw it pass—
Through the green window of spring,
Was it the spirit of grass?

The flank of the hillside swerved
With living, unknowable things—
Was it life that curved
There, under the shadow of wings?

Slowly it came, fold on fold—
The thing undefined, desired,
Emerald dreamed by the mind,
But turning to gold.

—Orian DePledge.

TWO SONGS OF THE DESERT

I

Here on the hill-top of evening,
With silence kept in the stone,
The wind in the greasewood grieving
In mournful monotone,—
Just when daylight is leaving
And sundown has fallen in chars,
The nighthawk takes up his weaving,
The desert sings to the stars.

Nothing at first, desolation
Lying west of the dawn,
And the primal incantation
Wooing the wilderness spawn.
And then, like the birth of Creation,
The wilderness muzzle unbars:
The coyote calls to his nation,
The desert sings to the stars!

II

Centuries go like the coming.
The desert lies waiting, apart,
No relent in its summing,
A ferine love in its heart.

Nothing to offer as fitness—
Till now, with the nighthawk's flight:
The desert is calling its witness
Under the hill-top of night.

And he comes with an old conviction
The coyote gives to his own,
Nothing of contradiction
In all his quavering tone.

And the ferine blood of the human
Opens a vein long fast,
Crouching at time's old tomb
In forgotten caves of the past!

—Gordon W. Norris.

The Time Has Come . .

By Kippy Stuart

All gardeners have "opinions." Some are correct, some are wide of the mark. I announced recently that the January freeze would probably kill most garden pests. Along comes the authority of Professor H. M. Butterfield, University of California, to shatter this hope. Professor Butterfield says bugs will still be with us, freeze or no freeze. The small comfort I took in my fallacious belief that we would be freed from the spraying schedule was short lived. The beasties can withstand a black freeze and still come back to nibble at our gardens, so blow up your spraying gadgets and get ready to return to the battle. I hereby retract everything I have said about bugs and freeze.

I "sat in" on a garden tour last Sunday where scientific terms whizzed about like shrapnel. Professor Butterfield and Mrs. Lester Rowntree were having a field day comparing notes and generally talking over my head. My role was that of impresario. I ushered my two friends from garden to garden where weary and dilapidated plant life awaited their analyses. The scientific language was over my head, but occasionally the down to earth talk gave me rising hopes for our forlorn gardens.

Mrs. Lester Rowntree, who is a well known authority on California native flora, pointed with pride to shrubs indigenous to these parts that were standing sturdy and untouched by frost. Her comment was, "Why not plant native flora in our gardens?" Which, after all, makes sense. Come a frosty night, we could pull the covers over our head and sleep in peace.

For goodness sake, don't go whacking with those clippers at eugenias and fuchsias. They look dead, but give the plants a chance. Many that now look dead beyond recall may sprout in the spring. Professor Butterfield showed us some frost freaks. Plants standing side by side reacted differently. One would be living, the other gone. With his penknife he scratched away at branches. Most lateral branches showed sear and brown. Down would go the penknife until green showed, and from that small green tissue new life will spring. Of course, these plants will probably have to be cut to the ground, but give them a chance, maybe some will fool you and sprout away up yonder. Think of the fun we will have watching the dead return to life. I'm only talking to keep up my courage for I have eugenias that are lofty and graceful, the growth of years, and I weep literary tears at the thought of my loss. Oh well. We are all young and can grow up again with our gardens.

I had about given up my datura trees when along came a telephone message from Mrs. Bonnie Gottfried to say that she had had datura frozen to the ground, only to have it sprout again and grow into sizable trees. Everybody knows more than somebody else, and these tips from gardeners who have actually had experience with black frost is gratefully received.

Watch your house plants. Keep them away from cold windows and be sure to turn potted plants and dish gardens about ever so often so they will not grow lopsided.

RED + NEWS

On Monday the Blood Donor Center at the Army and Navy YMCA in Monterey was the scene of one of the most successful days the Center has had since its opening in October.

The call for donors in January produced 77 volunteers, of which 26 were from Carmel. A group of soldiers from Fort Ord also volunteered as donors to the local bank. This month the quota was exceeded when 59 pints were taken, and this allows the blood banks to replace blood drawn from the National Blood Program Center at San Jose when the quota was not filled.

The Blood Donor Center was staffed by the Carmel Nurses Aides and Staff Assistants, the Monterey Canteen Workers, Monterey Motor Corps and a volunteer registered nurse, together with the professional attendants who accompany the Bloodmobile Unit from San Jose.

The need for donors will be just as great each month in the year as blood is a living fluid and cannot be manufactured and a quota of fresh whole blood is needed to replenish the bank stocks for local use. If we can keep up the wholehearted support of this program month in and month out then no one in our hospitals need ever die or suffer for want of a needed transfusion.

Enroll now with the Carmel Red Cross as a donor for the months to come. Your gift of life will then be ready for a relative, neighbor or friend, although you may be away from home when their emergency arises.

Our Congressman Writes Home

I introduced two bills of interest to all Californians within the last few days. Both directly affect the state and our own congressional district.

First would give California clear title to tidelands, as opposed to claims of the federal government. I feel that unless this is done, we are going to run into countless red tape in the operation of harbors. We have invested millions of dollars in those harbors, and have successfully operated our own affairs for many years.

Second would provide for adjudication of Colorado River water rights, which would give California its fair share. We in every section of California are dependent upon one another; Southern California must have adequate water to grow and prosper.

With inauguration out of the way, Congress is getting down to business. Having passed through a reorganization period and selection of officers and committees since opening January 3, the business [illegible] solution of serious problems should be gotten under way at once. In his state of the union message, President Truman made a long list of recommendations. Decisions should be reached, I think, in the shortest time possible. Many will not be easy and will entail much study. For instance, the budget of 42 billion will take much thought and involves the voting of four billions in new taxes. I, for one, am reluctant to impose new taxes on our people until I am absolutely certain the cost of government cannot be cut.

What do Pine Cone readers think of their Congressman's stand on the above matters? We appreciate it greatly when you use the columns of The Pine Cone for your expression of opinion.

WHEN FATHER CALLED NEW YORK

How in a few short years, Long Distance has speeded service, improved clarity, lowered rates

1. Back in 1918 it was quite a thing to call long distance all the way across the country. Took a good set of lungs, too. In those days you had to use as much voice to talk long distance as you would in calling to another person eighty feet away across an open field.

2. Today it's just as easy to talk across the nation as it is to talk to someone just across the table from you. Continual improvements in the telephone instrument you use, in telephone lines and cables, in voice-boosting equipment along the way, make a normal voice carry 3,000 miles or more with ease.

3. Rates have gone down amazingly. In 1918, Father paid about $18.00 for the miracle of talking Coast-to-Coast. Worth it, too. By 1928, we'd been able to drop rates to about $9.00 for a three-minute station daytime call. And today you can make the same call for just $2.50, plus tax. Here's one of today's big bargains.

4. Takes less time today to get your connection. Now calls go through in an average of less than two minutes. These are just a few examples of the way telephone service grows in value . . . becomes a better buy. A local call still costs just a few pennies. Compared to other prices, telephone service is one of your biggest bargains today.

Leards Leaving Carmel

After many years on the Monterey Peninsula Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Leard are moving to San Francisco, where Mr. Leard will be associated with the Wilbur Ellis Company in an executive capacity. Inactivity in the canning industry has played a part in Mr. Leard's decision, although he intends to retain his interest in the Peninsula and Custom House Canning companies, with which he has been connected for some time.

B. H. Kitchens, who before his service as a Commander in the Navy during the war managed the Custom House cannery, will take over its management again. Since the end of the war Mr. Kitchens has served as president of the Mission Valley Canning Co. in San Jose and, more recently, as a member of the Wilbur Ellis Co. sales organization. Mr. and Mrs. Kitchens will make their home in Carmel.

Lions Club Meeting

The weekly meeting of the Carmel Lions Club was held at the Mission Ranch on Tuesday evening with Mayor Fred Godwin as guest speaker.

Two new members, Stanley F. Gray and William Walker, were introduced to the organization. Guests for the evening were Joseph Harold, Jack Miller, Carl Mason, Dick Moore and Curly Wettengel.

A report was made by Joe Hudder on the coming Fashion Show to be held at the Mission Ranch on Saturday, January 29, stressing the fact that the buffet supper would be held at midnight.

Charles Leavitt volunteered to head the Cub Scout program and announced that Frank Putnam and Wes Whitaker will assist him.

Eastern Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. B. Morse last week entertained at a dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. Warren Ingersoll, who came out from Philadelphia for the Bing Crosby Tournament at Pebble Beach and are staying on at Del Monte Lodge.

Also in honor of the Ingersolls was a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. George L. Coleman, Jr., of Pebble Beach, and a luncheon at the Cypress Point Club given by Colonel and Mrs. Paul Winslow.

Swedish Visitor

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lloyd had as their house guest last week Miss Kirsten Bernhard of Sweden. Miss Bernhard, a commercial photographer whose training was undertaken in Germany and Sweden, is currently touring the U. S. to study American photography. After an investigation of Hollywood film processes she will continue her travels here before returning to Paris. The visitor, the Lloyds report, seemed most notably impressed by American furniture design, Carmel and the various local jargons.

In Los Angeles

Miss Alice Buguey is making the fashionable Town House her headquarters while in Los Angeles.

Carmel Woman's Club

The Garden Section meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club took place on Monday, with Mrs. Pierce Parsons, chairman of that section, reminding the members of the membership tea next Monday at 3 o'clock, to be preceded by a business meeting.

Mrs. Parsons introduced Mrs. W. J. Hunt, who demonstrated flower arrangements of great originality, pointing out that now is a time of challenge to anyone who works with flowers. With nothing that is not available to all, Mrs. Hunt created amazing arrangements, indicating that a little ingenuity is worth a lot of flowers.

Using such wild plants as cattails, seed pods, acanthus, yarrow and grasses, she combined them cleverly for color effects, often using a figurine to repeat the color of a single flower; in fact, she stressed the value of a figurine or a scarf to highlight the colors in any flower arrangement. Also demonstrated was a tea table decorated with white narcissus and laurel leaves running the length of the table, interspersed with bunches of white coral.

Tea was served by Mrs. F. E. Naftzger, hospitality chairman, who was assisted by Mrs. Ella Harris, Mrs. Charlotte Wight, Mrs. Eva Belangee, and Mrs. Lawrence de Adlershelm.

Home For U. C. Holidays

Barbara Josselyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talbert Josselyn, is here for the mid-semester vacation from U. C. A junior this year, Barbara is majoring in international relations and manages, among her other activities, to serve as a faculty adviser to lower classmen.

Also here for the vacation period are Betty Ryland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ryland, Martha Moller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Moller, and Penny Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Macmillan Kerr.

Penny Kerr, who is majoring in drama, has had two choice parts in U. C. productions, that of Miss Julia in Strindberg's play by the same name, and as Harbro in Menander's Greek comedy, The Arbitration, and will take part in the University's forthcoming production of George Ade's Sultan of Sulu.

AAUW Rummage Sale Set

Mrs. Edward Luker announces that the date for the University Women's Rummage Sale has been set for Friday and Saturday, February 4 and 5, to be held in the new building at 343 Del Monte avenue in Monterey (near the Railway Express building.)

Proceeds will be turned over to the organization's fund raising project, which last year provided worthwhile scholarships to one young woman in each of the Peninsula's three high schools.

Rummage of all kinds is being accepted. Any Carmel girls who have time to offer are asked to call Mrs. Bruce Elliott, Carmel 2129-R, or Mrs. Ted Durein, Carmel 426-R, for such duties as collecting, marking and selling.

Bishop Baptizes Grandson

Donald Allen Blanks, son of Herbert J. Blanks and Roxana H. Blanks, who was born on September 29, 1947, was baptized at the Church of the Wayfarer on Sunday evening, January 16, by his great-grandfather, Bishop Herbert Welch. Bishop Welch had previously baptized Donald's two older brothers. Following the baptism, a buffet supper was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Blanks, and their guests were Mrs. Anthony Blanks, Dr. and Mrs. K. Fillmore Gray, and Bishop and Mrs. Herbert Welch.

Families On Move

Mrs. Helen Clark Park happily reports that her two sons have resettled their respective families without any casualties.

James Caldwell Park and his wife, who spent the holidays in Carmel with Mrs. Park, have moved from Santa Barbara to Salinas, where James is engaged in the produce business.

Charles Edward Park, Mrs. Park and their three children are in Mount Vernon, New York, where they have their own apartment in the home of Mrs. Park's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Tidball. Charles will continue his studies at Columbia University. Mr. Tidball, who is connected with the Armed Services YMCA, has many friends in Carmel and visits here frequently.

D. A. R. Entertains

Commodore Sloat Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, played hostess to the presidents of Peninsula women's service organizations last Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Roy Frisbee in Monterey.

A symposium covering the ideas, objectives and projects of each of the groups represented was recorded on a wire recorder and played back for the enjoyment of those present.

Following a brief business session, Marcia De Voe, regent of the D. A. R., gave a showing of color slides accompanied by a co-ordinated recording. The first group was First Days at School, depicted the program of the modern kindergarten. The second was a series of Monterey scenes.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Frisbee and her co-hostesses, Miss Sue Estell Tuck and Miss Elizabeth Merrill.

The state convention will be held from March 22 to March 25 in San Jose. Mrs. Frisbee, Mrs. L. P. Bambauer, Mrs. J. K. Paul and Mrs. Clark Mahoney will represent the chapter at the convention.

In addition to members, guests present were Mrs. Tredo Balesteri, president Thomas O. Larkin P. T. A.; Mrs. Flossie Lough, president V. F. W. Auxiliary Henry Chapman Post; Mrs. Fern Toomey, president American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. Howard Fitzsimmons, president Pacific Grove P. T. A.; Mrs. Peter Tracey, president Del Monte P. T. Women Voters' Tea

Around 40 women attended the tea for members and prospective members of the League of Women Voters given by the executive board of the organization at the home of Miss Orre Haseltine in Carmel Valley on Wednesday afternoon. Erroneously listed as the final social gathering for the season, it will be followed by another tea on February 17 at the home of Mrs. Paul Low on Ridge Road in Carmel, to which more than 30 members and guests will be invited to greet the officers and become better acquainted.

With the sun shining brightly through the large windows despite the sharp air outside, the guests compared notes on frosted gardens, welcomed new members and colleagues from the four communities covered by the League, and chatted about the work of the study groups, while enjoying tea, coffee, sandwiches, and cakes. The tea table with its charming centerpiece of varicolored succulents was presided over in turn by Mrs. Kenneth Doolittle, Mrs. Lee O. Kellogg, Miss L. Lucile Turner and Mrs. Harold P. Underwood.

The committee that has planned and carried out these social gatherings includes Miss Haseltine, Mrs. Kellogg and Mrs. Low, with the president, Mrs. Frances A. Ballard, and the board members sharing the duties of hostess. More serious concerns of the league will be taken up with renewed zest after this pleasant interlude.

Arts And The Artists

By Mary-Madeleine Riddle

Reason Don Matthews resigned as president of the Carmel Crafts Guild is worth knowing. The first Presbyterian Church of Monterey has asked Mr. and Mrs. Matthews to be directors of religious education for the church, supervising both the young peoples' activities and the Sunday school. Faced with the choice between work with young people, for whom there is a scarcity of trained leaders, and guild work, the Matthews decided in favor of the former, since he feels there are other craftsmen as fired with enthusiasm for the new organization as he is. Don will continue to help from the sidelines, though.

Incidentally Don Matthews reports from a recent visit to the widely known Allied Arts Guild in Menlo Park that this guild has nothing superior to the high quality of work of Peninsula craft workers.

That handsome copper hood for a fireplace recently completed by Frances Whitaker is destined for one of Hugh Comstock's houses in Madera. Take a look while it is still at the Forge in the Forest.

Did you know that Claude Wolf is considered to be one of the very few Caucasians whose lacquer work is outstanding? So highly is his skill regarded that an Eastern outlet has offered to take everything he can produce. But you'd never learn this reputation from Wolf himself, of course.

Dr. Eric Berne, nationally known Carmel psychiatrist, will give a talk on Some Psychological Aspects of Art on Wednesday evening, February 2, as part of the program offered by Patricia Cunningham in her class on Art Appreciation. Place: Sunset School, room 11; time: 7:30. This Art Appreciation class, to remind you, is part of the Adult Education program, is open to the public and free, is held every Wednesday evening, same time, same place.

Looks as if we'll need a brace of national flags hung at the Carmel Art Association Galleries presently, for "art is international" handholding continues at a fine rate, and UNESCO should be mighty pleased. Around the last week in March there are plans to have an East Indian exhibit and lecture, featuring Ajit Mookerjee.

Sometime during that same month, thanks to Mrs. Bodin from the island of Majorca, there is to be an exhibition of the work of Majorcan artists, who are quite an international lot. As this island was the birthplace of Father Serra, and its art goes way back to the time of the Phoenicians who were the first to settle there, the show should be most interesting.

Here From Hawaii

Commander and Mrs. Adrian F. Werner, formerly of Hawaii, were on the Peninsula last weekend to renew many of their old acquaintances, among them Miss Vivian Ogden. Commander Werner is now stationed in Oakland.

Also here from Hawaii last week end was Miss Rosa Randall, who motored down from Oakland with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Randall of that city. Miss Randall is spending two months on the mainland, planning to visit San Francisco, Oakland and Carmel.

Mrs. E. M. Ogden East

Miss Vivian Ogden has received word from her mother, Mrs. E. Martin Ogden, who at 80 is still sprier than most of us, that she stopped long enough in New York City to have luncheon with Mrs. Helen Brown, mother of Ellen Brown and Jessie Joan Bever. For Carmel friends who wish to write to the Browns, they are living at Midston House, 22 East 38th street, New York City.

Mrs. Ogden continued her trip to Raleigh, N. C., where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. E. B. Rice and her husband, before returning to Carmel in the spring.

Women Voters Tea

The third in a series of social teas being given this month by the executive board of the Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters was held Wednesday at the home of Miss Orre B. Haseltine in Carmel Valley.

Miss Haseltine, assisted by Mrs. Frances A. Ballard, president, and other members of the executive board, was hostess to about 40 members and prospective members. The purpose of the series of teas is to allow members to become better acquainted, as well as to introduce new and prospective members.

Members who have offered the facilities of their homes for these teas are Mrs. Paul Low, Mrs. Lee O. Kellogg, Miss Orre B. Haseltine and Mrs. Philip Schneeberger. The date for the fourth tea has not been announced.

Tait-Ryder Wedding

One of the loveliest ceremonies to take place in the Church of the Wayfarer occurred on Sunday afternoon, when Miss Diane Tait became the bride of Richard John Ryder of Gustine. In a church filled with masses of white stock, more than 200 guests witnessed the double ring ceremony in a service read by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray. Diane was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. F. R. Sherman of San Francisco. Miss Gloria Ann Ryder, sister of the groom, was the organist, and solos were sung by Dici Douglas of Carmel.

The bride wore a formal gown of white faille, over which was a tiny, long sleeved jacket with a pleated flare at the back. A finger tip veil falling from her blond hair was crowned with lily of the valley. and she carried a Bible with butterfly orchids on it.

Mrs. Earl B. Short, Jr. (Martina Tait), matron of honor and sister of the bride, wore a replica of her sister's gown in moss green and carried bright red tulips.

Willis Ryder attended his brother as best man; ushers were Wilmar Jense, Emanuel Azevedo, Noille Mattos and Frank Cardoza, all of Gustine, Boyd Jensen of Newman and Phil Cordray of Pacific Grove.

The new Mrs. Ryder is the daughter of Mrs. Martina Tait of Carmel, and the sister of Miss Joanne Tait, Mrs. Earl B. Short, Jr., of San Francisco, and Mrs. Beverly Viney. Diane attended Carmel schools and is a graduate of Hartnell College in Salinas, where she met her husband.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ryder of Gustine, and the grandson of Mrs. John D. Jensen and Mrs. S. W. Ryder, also of Gustine, who attended the wedding.

A reception following the wedding was held at La Ribera Hotel, which had been decorated for the occasion with great effectiveness under the supervision of the bride's sister, Beverly. Relatives of the groom who attended the wedding and reception came from Petaluma, Hanford and Newman. The bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Sherman, came down from San Francisco for the event, as did her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Short, Jr.

The popular newlyweds left for an unknown destination for a two weeks' honeymoon, after which they will live in their newly equipped house at Gustine, where Mr. Ryder is in business.

Skiing In Yosemite

Neil and Kraig Weston joined forces with Cole and Dorothy Weston last weekend on a trip to Yosemite Valley, where they were the house guests of Ansel and Virginia Adams. Although Cole was the lone skier in the party, the others enjoyed horseplay in more snow than they had ever seen. On Sunday, in spite of continuous snow, the snow plows kept the roads in good enough condition to allow the group to drive up to Badger Pass.

Victorine-Brewer Wedding

On Saturday afternoon in an informal service at St. James Episcopal Church in Monterey, Miss Alice Victorine became the bride of Edgar Brewer. Only family members were present for the ceremony at which Bishop Winifred Zeigler officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Joseph Victorine of Carmel Highlands, wore a gray silk dress with gray accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

The bride's attendant was Mrs. Lucille Zimmerman of Carmel Valley. Mark Tibbetts of the Highlands served as the groom's best man.

Following the wedding, a reception was given, in charge of Mrs. Jack Eaton, at the Carmel Highlands Fire House.

After a honeymoon in San Diego, the newlyweds will make their home in the Highlands.

Mr. Brewer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brewer of Salinas.

Here For Winter

Mrs. Pat Allen, who divides her time between Los Angeles, Portland and Carmel, has reopened her home on Santa Rita street and plans to remain here for an indefinite time. Mrs. Allen s sister, Carolyn Unander, whose death occurred last summer, was for many years the director of the Forest Hill School.

To L. A. For Winter

Mrs. Ro Lindgren and her small son, R. B., drove south on Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Byington Ford. Mrs. Lindgren, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Ford, and Mr. Ford, in their Carmel Valley home, plans to spend the winter in Los Angeles with a friend, Mrs. Ruth Lewis.

Snow Country Visitors

Carmelites may be shivering, but F. W. Meech, brother of Mrs. James Cooksley, is finding it warmer here than in Twin Falls, Idaho, or any place in between for that matter. Mr. Meech, who expects to settle here, recently arrived with Mrs. Meech, and they report that snow plows were in action in front of trains all the way, drifts sometimes being higher than the cars.

FAMILY GROUP TRAVEL PLAN

Seton Thinks She's Old Enough To Visit The Cupola

studio made from a barn, in the dunes this side of Pebble Beach.

"His dream has really come true, hasn't it?" Grace Seton said. She turned to me. "Frank Powers used to talk of making Carmel a place for cultured people to live, people who loved the arts because their sense of values was clear and real."

Though Carmel had changed much physically in its growth, Mrs. Seton said she began to recognize familiar contours as they drove about. "It is still the most beautiful town in California."

Mrs. Seton spoke of other changes. One time she revisited the big old house her father, Albert Gallatin built in Sacramento, which, ever since the Gallatin family gave it up, has been the executive mansion of the Governor of California. The rooms which had seemed so cavernous to her as a child had shrunk amazingly; in one she was briefly puzzled and lost until she realized that the burled walnut walls had been painted white. She hadn't quite dared to go upstairs to see if the handpainted roses were still on bash basin and toilet; wishes she'd been invited to explore once more the old cupola, which like a magic tower over the intricate gingerbread of the house, gave view of the wide world all around, which she was some day to explore to its fartherest end. Now she thinks she will revisit it once more, and that the dignity of her years will permit her to come right out and ask the Governor if she can go up in the cupola.

Mrs. Seton was president of the Pen and Brush Club for 14 years, and has the distinction of being the only woman in the national organization of the American League of Pen Women to hold the position of national president two different times. In 1941 she became director of literary activities of the Pan-American League.

Her book, Tenderfoot in Egypt, was chosen as one of the best 100 books written by American women during the past century, and her book, Yes, Lady Sahib, won the Washington book prize contest. She has been twice decorated by the French government.

Recently she has had a book of poems published called The Singing Traveler. Interesting was the fact that she decided to forego her world-known triple name for her poetry, and by using just Grace Seton, to be another self, unknown as a poet, and let the slim volume sail on its own. It is pleasant to report that it has sold very well on its own, too, as poetry goes, Mrs. Seton conscientiously added.

Just as her travel books were more than just travel, and her activities as much concerned with women for motor units in war, and suffrage and peace, as with literary organizations, so Grace Seton's poetry is as much philosophy as it is description. The two poems on two Chinese wives, one of the old order of things, one of the modern, are not only vivid, but also thoughtful comment on a country's evolution.

Of course I asked her what, from her extensive knowledge of the people themselves in the Far East, did she think of the present situation? With the humility of the informed, she was hesitant to make any broad and general pronouncements, pointing out that the wisest of foreign affairs people were unsure of what the next few years would bring.

"I have great faith in the future of China," she said, "but at present China is in a great state of shakes, like a bowlful of jelly . . . rolled back and forth, but sure to settle back into its mold." Not that she did not think there would be continued progress. She pointed out that Chinese women have become bankers and journalists, that the singsong girls formed a union some time ago to offset Japanese competition. The Chinese woman has a long background of political knowledge in the sense that among the well-to-do, she has for hundreds of years wielded a matriarch's unquestioned power over huge families. Among the peasants she has worked right along with her husband. Those in the treaty ports are becoming educated, and language is being simplified through a basic brief list of the numerous characters. Too, Mrs. Seton pointed out, the peasants are better educated than we think, not by books, but by the verbal handing down from father to son of China's centuries-old culture.

If the implication that women are to be a part of the salvation of the Far East, and mention of motor units and women's suffrage, leads you to imagine, as I half expected, a bustling or belligerent feminist, let me correct you. My first impression of Mrs. Seton, and I knew her years, though I won't tell, was a surprised, "Why this is a beautiful and feminine woman!" and right away I began to glow with hope confirmed: it can be done, not to grow old.

When Mrs. Leoni said, "Just how did you manage to visit 11 maharajahs?" Mrs. Seton gave a vague and feminine wave of her hand, and said, "Oh, one thing leads to another, you know." Her clothes and jewelry would have been no problem to her if it hadn't been to others. When her modest and limited travel wardrobe was scrutinized by great ladies in cloth of gold saris with a semi-circle of diamonds extending from nostril to ear, Mrs. Seton learned to murmur, "My jewels have been sent ahead for safe-keeping in a vault. I must travel light, you know," so they would not feel she had not honored them by also dressing up for their meetings. This seemed to satisfy them as logical, though they still looked as though they would have liked to compare notes on her non-existent collection.

Once a maharajah murmured an aside to the interpreter which she was sure was derogatory. Outside, after the interview, Mrs. Seton asked the interpreter just what it was his highness had said.

"He said your pearls need cleaning," answered the interpreter in considerable embarrassment. "They are a bit off-color," he added. "Of course some people just can't wear them successfully. Now if you would permit me to give you some special powder to clean them, I am sure the luster can be restored." Obviously it had never occurred to maharajah land that anyone would wear anything but real pearls. These, however, were Tecla. Rather than disillusion a lot of people about the realities of the outer world, Mrs. Seton graciously accepted the powder for pearls and went off.

Mrs. Seton has a daughter, Anya, recently married to Hamilton Chase. Anya Seton has inherited the family's writing streak. She has only three best sellers to her name as yet, including Dragonwyck. But give her time. Houghton Mifflin are about to publish her fourth book, The Hearth and the Eagle.

Hans Pusch To Give Goethe Readings Here On February 12

Readings from Goethe's Faust by Hans Pusch, actor from New York, will be given in room 11 at Sunset School at 8 p. m., Saturday, February 12. The public is invited.

This year marks the world wide celebration of the 200th anniversary of Goethe's birth. Appropriate recognition of this event is well under way in this country, especially at the University of Chicago.

Mr. Pusch will read scenes from both parts of Faust using the translation by George Madison Priest of Princeton University.

Hans Pusch made his stage debut at 16 years of age at the City Theater of Lucerne, Switzerland, under the late motion picture director Murnau (producer of the film Taboo, etc.) He continued his career as actor, teacher and stage manager, touring the countries of Europe with the Goetheanum Actors' Group under the direction of Marie Steiner. In 1947 he was called back to take a leading part in the Faust Festivals at the Goetheanum in Switzerland and in guest performances in London. In 1939 he established his dramatic work in this country. He has been associated as lecturer and teacher with various groups, including the Chekhov Theater Studio.

This recital will be the only public appearance of Mr. Pusch locally, although several small groups are making plans to hear him speak further on Faust as well as on the general subject of Rudolf Steiner and the Art of Speech. His program is sponsored by the local Rudolf Steiner Study Group.

Clay Somers Will Read Browning At Adult School Class

Clay Somers is going to give one of his famous poetry readings next Tuesday evening, February 1, before Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte's current literature group in room 11 of Sunset School. This time he will read his favorite poems by Robert Browning, and visitors are welcome to attend.

Mr. Somers holds a master's degree in French literature. During the war he was a Major in the Army Intelligence Service in both Africa and Alaska. Since taking up his residence in Carmel he has been connected with the Village Bookshop and participated in the local theatrical productions. His major role in the Golden Bough Playhouse was the lead in William Saroyan's play, The Time of Your Life. Dan Totheroh, who is writing the script for the Centennial Celebration next August, is planning to use Mr. Somers as the narrator, because of his finished diction and creative ability in reading a part.

Edward O. Sisson

Dr. Edward Octavius Sisson, 79, distinguished educator, lecturer, and retired professor whose charm and unfailing kindliness had won him a host of friends on the Monterey Peninsula since his retirement in Carmel ten years ago, died suddenly early Monday morning at a Monterey hospital, following admission two days before for treatment for an arterial ailment.

Since his retirement in 1939 after 52 years of active leadership in the field of education, Dr. Sisson served as lecturer on philosophy and education for the Carmel Adult School and, since the fall of 1948, conducted seminars in philosophy at the Monterey Peninsula College. He contributed to several philosophical and educational publications and The Pine Cone.

Born May 24, 1869, in Gateshead, England, he received his early education in that country prior to acquiring degrees from several American universities. Among them were Kansas State College, B. Sc., D. Sc.; University of Chicago, A. B.; Harvard, Ph. D.; and University of Montana, Litt. D. In 1903-4 he engaged in post-graduate work at the University of Berlin. From 1886 to 1897 he served as teacher and principal in public and private schools in Illinois, and later as director of the Bradley Polytechnic Institute, Peoria, assistant professor in education at the University of Illinois, professor at the University of Washington, professor at Reed College, Portland, director of education for the state of Idaho, president of the University of Montana, lecturer on education for the University of California and during summer sessions at Harvard, and visiting professor of philosophy at San Jose State and Reed Colleges.

A Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Kappa, Dr. Sisson was a member of the American Arbitration Association, the American Philosophical Association, of which he was Pacific Division president in 1939, the American Association of University Professors, and the Portland City Club. He was also a Fellow of the Philosophy of Education Society.

Published books by the educator include The Essentials of Character (1910), Principles of Secondary Education (1914), Educating for Freedom (1925), and, with other authorities, The Social Emergency (1913). Since 1926 he had been engaged in writing an autobiographical study of comparative education, tentatively titled One Man's America. The volume may be completed and posthumously published by members of his family.

Dr. Sisson leaves his wife, Astrid, and a daughter, Mrs. C. E. Dunlap, both of Carmel; a son, Calvin Richard Sisson, Portland, Oregon; a brother, Dr. Charles Sisson, head of the Shakespeare School, University of London; and three grandchildren, Ruth, Clarence Emmett, Jr., and Mary Elizabeth Dunlap, all of Carmel.

Services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Church of the Wayfarer, Carmel, with Dr. K. Fillmore Gray officiating. Inurnment was at the Little Chapel by the Sea, Pacific Grove, with the T. A. Dorney Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

In accordance with a wish often expressed by Dr. Sisson, floral tributes were omitted. In view of the fact that he was a member of the book committee for Harrison Memorial Library, friends wishing to offer tribute were asked to send contributions to a memorial book purchase fund for the library. Those desiring to pay respects in this way may send their contributions to Librarian Elizabeth Niles, P. O. Box 800, Carmel.

New B. A. Secretary Has Known Carmel Since School Days

Helen Wilson, appointed this month as executive secretary to the Carmel Business Association, is a Carmel native who returned "for good" last year. Her appointment was announced following the resignation of Barbara Norberg, association member and secretary since 1941.

Mrs. Wilson, wife of Roderick N. Wilson, who recently opened insurance offices in Monterey, is a graduate of Sunset School and of the University of California at Berkeley. In 1936 she returned to Carmel to serve as secretary to the late Otto Bardarson, then district school superintendent. During this period she also directed girls' athletics at Sunset. A year later she returned to Berkeley, where she and her husband lived until he was sent overseas on Army duty in 1942. At the war's end the couple began laying plans for moving to Carmel to live, and by 1948 were established in their home at Eleventh and Junipero.

Active member of the P. T. A. board and the Girl Scout Executive Council since her return, Mrs. Wilson thinks she is also a member of the Business Association.

"Since I'm not an elected officer, but employed by the board as a kind of assistant to Al Fry, elected secretary, my position is rather hard to define," she said this week. "My duties aren't though. Most of my time is taken up in answering letters from all over the world. Since the association has no offices, I do the work in my home."

Mrs. Wilson has two small daughters, Nicky, 6, and Sherry, 2.

"Nicky is in the first grade at Sunset," she said. "Sherry stays home and helps me with my work."

HUNTER TRIALS SET

Dates for the Pebble Beach Invitational Hunter Trials have been set for May 7 and 8 by a committee meeting held this week. Chairman for the event is Richard D. Collins, who will be assisted by Mrs. Paul Clark, Mrs. Edison A. Holt, James M. R. Glazer, and John Boit Morse.

In addition to the new Bird Rock Course, which got off to a good start last year, it is the committee's plan to improve the Pebble Beach Stables course; the Allen Griffin course at Pebble Beach will also be used.

"How excellent is thy loving-kindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings" (Psalms 36:7). This is the Golden Text for the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, January 30, on the subject "Love."

The following citations are included in the sermon:

The Bible: "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him" (I John 4:9).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Love is infinite. Therefore all that really exists is in and of God, and manifests His Love" (p. 340).

Bixby Creek Slayer Bound Over To Superior Court

Augustin Lavinia, confessed killer of five Filipino companions at a Bixby Creek restaurant six months ago who was captured Wednesday morning in Danville, was arraigned yesterday morning before Judge Ray Baugh in Monterey Justice Court. Following a preliminary hearing Thursday afternoon Lavinia was bound over to the Superior Court.

As result of an anonymous tip received several days before, the husky 47-year-old Filipino was surrounded by sheriff's deputies headed by Sheriff Jack McCoy and Chief Criminal Deputy Noble D. Witcher while working in a garlic field near Danville. Lavinia offered no resistance to arrest and later talked freely with his captors concerning the mass killing and his activities as a fugitive during the past six months, most of which he had spent in San Francisco and Contra Costa counties.

The killings occurred after an argument with Rufino Cabebe, dealer in a game of Chinese dominoes in progress at an employees' bunkhouse at the restaurant the night of August 6, Lavinia said. He told Sheriff McCoy that he drew a .22 calibre rifle from his bunk and shot and clubbed to death Cabebe, Dominador Fernandez, Joe Quindoz, Esedro Regalado, and Paul Undazan, all fellow employees at the restaurant. After picking up stakes in the game amounting to more than $600, Lavinia left his suitcase at the edge of a nearby cliff to lead investigators to believe he had committed suicide, and hitch-hiked to Monterey where he boarded a train for San Francisco. He told his captors that he had avoided restaurant work and had been employed as a field laborer during the past six months.

PADRE TRAILS ELECTION

Earle H. Meyer was elected president of the Padre Trails Camera Club at a meeting Saturday evening at the Forest Hill Hotel in Pacific Grove. Ernest Victorine was chosen vice-president; Glenn Hellyar, recording secretary; Doris Schmeidell, corresponding secretary, and Beatrice Ralston, treasurer.

Entertainment for the meeting was provided by a show of Myron Oliver's beautiful color transparencies of the local scene, many of which he has processed himself.

At the next meeting, February 5, Forest Hill Hotel, the fourth monthly print and slide contest will be held, the subject, California Missions. Dr. Edward Rykenboer, Carmel Camera Club member and distinguished amateur photographer, will be the judge.

Thomas' Hearing On Code Violation Set For Feb. 16

Clarence C. Thomas, head of a Carmel building firm declared unable to meet obligations totalling more than $100,000 three weeks ago, has been ordered to appear February 16 in Monterey Justice Court for trial on Labor Code violation charges, Deputy District Attorney John Shephard said this week. In an arraignment January 7 Thomas, owner of Mercury Homes, was charged with issuing a negotiable instrument not payable upon demand in payment for wage claims, a misdemeanor.

Further charges, including those arising from two complaints demanding payment for building materials filed by Henry Eisemann, Peninsula contractor, may be pressed at the February hearing, Shephard said. Thomas, initiator of a "modular construction" unit prefabricated system for low cost home building on the Peninsula, was indicted and found guilty several years ago in connection with Southern California OPA violations in the building trades.

How To Be A Gent In Any Condition Or Circumstances

ears of the mixed company present in the waiting room, Emery stepped up and tactfully suggested a modification of their language. After profuse apologies the pair continued their discussion in lowered voices. A second lapse brought another warning a few minutes later, with a suggestion that they retire for the night. This, too, was gracefully accepted, together with a recommendation that, in view of their somewhat elated condition, the argumentative gentlemen go home by taxicab.

The first had just departed in a cab when Emery noticed the second member of the team heading unsteadily for his car.

"Uh, uh!" Emery admonished. The other turned.

"Uh, uh?" He paused thoughtfully, then locked his car carefully and handed over the keys. Observing that it was such a splendid night out he guessed he would walk home, he thanked the officer for his solicitude and disappeared cheerily, if jaggedly, into the night.

Artichoke land will soon grow power

P. G. and E.'s biggest steam plant under way on Monterey Bay

A 280-acre vegetable farm near Moss Landing on Monterey Bay soon will be producing the greatest crop of power in P. G. and E. history for Northern and Central California.

For here is being built the company's largest steam plant, a 402,000-horsepower giant whose electric output will contribute to P. G. and E.'s entire interconnected system.

This is the ninth major producing unit begun since V-J Day to serve the growing demand for power in California. Four already have been completed, and still others are planned.

1,500 workmen will be on this job when construction reaches its peak, and a good share of the $51,500,000 estimated cost of the project will be in payroll, which in turn will pass on to local business.

On the line in the spring of 1950 will go the first of three 134,000-horsepower generators; the others are scheduled for the following year. Preliminary work already is going full speed ahead.

for the record

The plant's huge boilers will be fired by oil shipped in by both sea and rail.

P. G. and E. already has invested $300,000,000 in post-war power facilities.

Half a million new horsepower are already at work for Northern and Central California.
